THE END OF A BANDIT

HOW SAM BASS MET A VIOLENT DEATH IN A TEXAS TOWN.

The Shooting of the Notorious Desperado Was the Outcome of a Deliberate Murder Committed by One of His Gang of Outlaws.

"In the little town of Round Rock, in Williamson county, Tex., not more than 30 miles distant from Austin, repose the remains of one of the most desperate highwaymen that ever operated in our section," said Mr. I. N. Crocker of the Lone Star State to a reporter.

"It was in the spring of 1878 that Sam Bass met his fate in this sleepy little town, and when he died with his boots on the southwest was rid of a criminal who was easily the peer of Jesse James, though he hadn't quite as long a run as that noted outlaw. Bass was a product of Michigan—at least, his sister, a gentle girl, came down from some town in that state to see that his body was decently interred.

"Bass had collected about him a company of as hardened thieves as ever engineered a hold up. The gang had robbed a number of trains in Missouri and Arkansas and concluded they would make one more good haul in Texas before riding across the border into Mexico, where they proposed to stay in retirement for a season.

"Bass had planned the looting of the only bank at Round Rock as an easier job and doubtless a better paying one than tackling a train, which feat had been performed too often to be thoroughly safe. By changing his programme to raiding a village bank there might be more lucre and less risk.

"So on that lovely morning in May when he and his fellow thieves rode into the unsuspecting town they chuckled to think what an easy job it would be to transfer the bank's cash to their pockets. So thoroughly certain were they of getting off with the plunder that they were in no haste about the matter. One wanted to get a shave, another went into a restaurant and so they scattered singly over the place, but there was an understanding as to the time of attack, and a rendezvous was fixed upon.

"Meanwhile, unknown to the bandits, a squad of mounted Texas rangers had been pressing hard upon the trail of the bad men, and within an hour after the Bass outfit entered Round Rock Sergeant Dick Ware, with eight or ten rangers, also reached the scene. He wasn't aware of the presence of the robbers, nor did they dream that the officers of the law were in that vicinity. Neither did any citizen of the town have the remotest idea of the identity of certain rough looking men, strangers in the place. But they might be cowboys from some distant west Texas cattle ranch, for the presence of such was too common to occasion notice.

"The climax came quite by accident. One of the ruffians who had sauntered into a store to make a few purchases, in reaching for his purse to make payment, disclosed a big Colt's revolver. The Texas law against carrying guns was strict, and so it happened that the man who saw the weapon was none other than the town marshal, as brave a fellow as ever lived. He walked up to the desperado and said quite courteously:

"My friend, I'll have to relieve you of that six shooter."

"I'll give it to you, then," said the robber with an oath, and in a second had drawn his weapon and fired upon the marshal, who fell dead at the report.

"Upon this the robber rushed out of the store, and immediately his comrades came running to the spot, but no faster than did the rangers with their Winchester, ready for action. In a second it seemed as if both sides had the situation revealed, and the robbers turned to run to where their horses stood tied, a block from where the murder of the marshal occurred. Before he had run 50 yards Dick Ware had sent a bullet into the head of Barnes, Bass' lieutenant, which laid the highwayman low.

"Bass, mortally wounded, managed to get upon his horse, which he urged to breakneck speed. The animal ran for about three miles till he reached the open prairie and stopped to graze. As he did so his rider, unable to sit longer in the saddle from loss of blood, fell to the ground.

"When they found him a few hours later, he was dying. He recognized Sergeant Ware as the man who had killed him and said he wanted Ware to have his horse. He regretted their procrastination in robbing the bank, for if they had only known the rangers were so near they could have finished the job and escaped."—Washington Post.

Arab music has been described as the singing of a prima donna who has ruptured her voice in trying to sing a duet with herself. Each note starts from somewhere between a sharp and a flat, but does not stop even there, and splits up into four or more portions, of which no person can be expected to catch more than one at a time.

The Clever Spider.

"One of my friends was accustomed to grant shelter to a number of garden spiders under a vacant veranda and to watch their habits. One day a sharp storm broke out, and the wind raged so furiously through the garden that the spiders suffered damage from it, although sheltered by the veranda. The mainyards of one of these webs, as the sailors would call them, were broken so that the web was blown hither and thither, like a slack sail in a storm.

"The spider made no fresh threads, but tried to help itself in another way. It let itself down to the ground by a thread and crawled to a place where lay some splintered pieces of a wooden fence, thrown down by the storm. It fastened a thread to one of the bits of wood, turned back with it and hung it with a strong thread to the lower part of its nest, about five feet from the ground. The performance was a wonderful one, for the weight of the wood sufficed to keep the nest tolerably firm, while it was yet light enough to yield to the wind and so prevent further injury. The piece of wood was about 2½ inches long and as thick as a goose quill.

"On the following day a careless servant knocked her head against the wood, and it fell down. But in the course of a few hours the spider mended her web, broke the supporting thread in two and let the wood fall to the ground."—Our Animal Friends.

Dublin Bootblacks, 1780.

Among the populace of Dublin in 1780, says the University Magazine, the shoeblacks were a numerous and formidable body. The polish they used was lampblack and eggs, for which they purchased all that were rotten in the markets. Their implements consisted of a three legged stool, a basket containing a blunt knife, called a spudd, a painter's brush and an old wig. A gentleman usually went out in the morning with dirty boots or shoes, sure to find a shoeblack sitting on his stool at the corner of the street. The gentleman put his foot in the lap of the shoeblack without ceremony, and the artist scraped it with his spudd, wiped it with his wig and then laid on his composition as thick as black paint with his painter's brush.

The stuff dried with a rich polish, requiring no friction and little inferior to the elaborated modern fluids, save only the intolerable odors exhaled from eggs in a high state of putridity and which filled any house which was entered before the composition was quite dry and sometimes even tainted the air of fashionable drawing rooms. Polishing shoes, we should mention, was at this time a refinement almost confined to cities, people in the country being generally satisfied with grease.

The Cause.

"Have you a last request to make?" asked the king of the Cannibal Islands, addressing the missionary.

The latter glanced at his august majesty (so called by reason of his summer attire), and replied:

"Yes, Great One. When I left my native heath, I promised to write to a brother in this line of work and tell him how I liked the country. If your majesty pleases, I should like to write him a few words."

The king reflected for a moment.

"There can be no objection to that, so far as I can see. You may proceed."

The missionary's hands were untied, and there upon a piece of bark he inscribed the following words:

Dear Friend—This is a delightful country. There is but one objection to it, and that, I fear, will account for the fact that I shall never see you again. There is plenty to eat here—but the cooking will kill me. Farewell.

This being finished, the king directed his slaves to stir the caldron and the preparation of the meal proceeded.

A Tale From the Mysterious East.

The last wonderful tale being told among the Burmese in Rangoon is concerning a monster egg. A few months ago near Shwebo the villagers heard a strange and mysterious voice in the jungle uttering in Burmese the words, "I am going to lay," which were repeated frequently several times a day for many days. Eventually the egg was laid, and its size is said to exceed that of ten large paddy baskets. Nobody will go near this egg, from which now come the words, "I am going to hatch," also repeated many times every day.—Times of Burmah.

The National Capitol.

North and south are joined in the material of the national capitol. The central building is constructed of Virginia sandstone painted white. The extensions are of Massachusetts marble, and 24 columns of the grand central portico are monoliths of Virginia sandstone 30 feet high, and 100 columns of the extension porticoes are of Maryland marble.

Advantages of Married Life.

"Married life is the thing."

"Why, for instance?"

"Well, you can have the comforts of home then."

"Are you keeping house?"

"No, but we've got a peach of a boarding house."—Chicago Chronicle.

Former Brutality In War.

Before a battle in former times the priests solemnly devoted to the gods the whole of the hostile army then in sight, and, if possible, no man of it was left alive. A writer in The Nineteenth Century says that when Hermann decimated the great host of Varus into the forest depths all the Romans that escaped death in the battle were captured and led into the dark recesses, where every man of them was sacrificed upon hastily erected altars.

Latham, in his edition of Tacitus, quotes six contemporary authorities to show that this practice of concluding a victory with human sacrifices was customary among our Teutonic ancestors. Some crucified their prisoners, others hung them up to trees for archery practice, but in general a captive was either slain on the spot or else reserved to be sacrificed to the gods. Even when the progress of agriculture induced them to keep a majority of the prisoners alive to be slaves they appeased the gods for this indignity by increasing the tortures inflicted on the small remainder.

Gibbon describes how, before the blazing altar, every hundredth man's arms were hacked off him and, before his eyes, thrown into the flames. All that a red Indian would have done last century was freely practiced by our ancestors of 12 centuries ago. And the highest ideal of a man then included, as a duty, dark cruelty and gruesome revenge against all his enemies.

Men's Feet.

The man buying a pair of shoes found the right one perfectly comfortable and easy, the left one rather snug.

"It's usually so," said the salesman; "the left foot is commonly a little bigger than the right foot."

"Why don't you make the left shoe a little bigger, then?" asked the customer.

"Well," said the salesman, "the difference is usually not great, and it might not be enough so that it would be noticed if trying on shoes. And then it is not so great but what the difference in feeling of the two shoes disappears very soon. And then, too, in some cases the man's right foot is the larger, the man being right footed in this respect as men are sometimes left handed, the reverse of the common habit in the use of their hands. If shoes were commonly made with the left a little bigger than the right, to fit the majority of cases, they'd be worse than ever when you hit a right footed man. So the shoes are made alike in size, a man gets a pair that fit him comfortably to start with and they adapt themselves quickly to any slight differences in the feet."—New York Sun.

How Care Kills.

Wise people have long been aware that "care killed a cat," but it has been left to the X rays to explain how and why. Dr. Fritz Lange of Munich has turned his fluorescent screen upon the stomach of a happy and contented cat and has seen the process of digestion going on as it should in all well regulated stomachs. Then he has introduced care and irritation into the feline mind by placing a live mouse just beyond reach and has seen digestion stopped thereby.

The Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals may cry out on behalf of the cat, or the mouse, or both, but the lesson against worrying is as complete as any Christian Scientist could desire. Worrying stops digestion, causes dyspepsia, retards all the normal physical processes and demoralizes both body and mind. It wastes the forces of life, destroying the tissues without accomplishing anything.—Chicago Tribune.

Dinnis McGuire's Whisky.

Meagher was full of anecdotes of his famous brigade. One story is too good to be lost. He said he was leading his men to the front in one of the seven days' battles when an aide rode by and announced the news that our army had carried a certain strategic point and several colors. "D'ye hear that, boys?" shouted Meagher. "Our men have won the day and captured the enemy's colors!" "Just as I said that," remarked the general, "a private who was plunging along out of one muddy hole into another, looked up at me and said, 'Ah, ginral, I'd rather hev a pint of Dinnis McGuire's whisky now than all the colors of the rainbow.'"—Donahue's Magazine.

Wouldn't Wear the Crown.

The late William Morris' views on the laureateship, as made public in Mr. Mackall's biography, were peculiar and interesting. Mr. Gladstone was willing to offer Morris the succession to Tennyson; but, on being sounded, the socialist poet, although pleased with the honor, declined unreservedly, stating that, in his opinion, the function of poet laureate was that of a ceremonial writer of verse, and that the Marquis of Lorne, the languidly literary son-in-law of Queen Victoria, was the finest person to fulfill it.

In some small villages the citizens never air anything but their grievances.—Galveston News.

HOW WE GET OUR TEETH.

It Is an Interesting and Somewhat Complicated Operation.

An eminent dentist is authority for the following interesting explanation:

It would take too long to describe the formation of the teeth, but it may interest you to know that the enamel is derived in the first place from the epithelium, or scarf skin, and is in fact modified skin, while the dentine, of which the bulk of the teeth is composed, is derived from the mucous layer below the epithelium.

Lime salts are slowly deposited, and the tooth pulp or nerve is the last remains of what was once a pulpy mass of the shape of the future tooth, and even the tooth pulp in the old people sometimes gets quite obliterated by calcareous deposits. The 32 permanent teeth are preceded by 20 temporary deciduous or milk teeth.

These are fully erupted at about 2 or 2½ years old, and at about 6 years of age a wonderful process of absorption sets in by which the roots of the temporary teeth are removed to make room for the advancing permanent ones. The crowns of the former, having no support, become loose and fall away.

One would, naturally suppose that the advancing permanent tooth was a powerful factor in the absorption of its temporary predecessor, but we have many facts to prove that it has no influence whatever. Indeed, the interesting phenomena of the eruption and succession of the teeth are very little understood.

I may remark in passing that a child of 6, who has not yet lost any temporary teeth, has in its jaws, either erupted or unerupted, no fewer than 52 teeth more or less formed.

How They Dress In Paris.

Walk along the streets of Paris, and you will see 100 simple citizens tricked out in such a guise as in sober London would make them ridiculous.

Is a man a poet? Then his hair is instantly long, his clothes are shabby and fantastic, his hat, with its flat brim, recalls the fashion of 1830. Is a man a painter? Then his clothes proclaim that he inhabits Montmartre and that he wanders up and down under the skinny trees of the Boulevard Rochechouart. Is a man a journalist? Then he is what is called epatant and dines for a reduced price at the Cafe Anglais. Is a man a deputy? Then the imagination refrains from a formula; he has a brougham, and he is decorated, but beyond this the eye of dogmatism cannot penetrate.

Yet, whoever he be, he dresses the part; he separates himself from the bourgeoisie by a trick of costume and gesture, and though no man ever possessed so brilliant a genius as the young Frenchman assumes his love of acting instantly marks him out, and the world is so wisely accustomed to his antics that a man who would be mobbed in London marches up and down Paris unobserved.—London Standard.

Skating on Water.

According to Professor J. Joly of Trinity college, Dublin, a skater really glides about on a narrow film of water continually forming under the skate and resuming the solid form when relieved of pressure. He shows that the pressure under the sharp edge of the skate, along the short portion of the steel curve which is at any moment in contact, is great enough to liquefy a thin line of ice, and this gives the skate its "bite." When the ice is very cold, the pressure is sometimes inadequate to reduce the melting point sufficiently, and then, as all skaters know, it is difficult to make the skates bite. For very cold ice Professor Joly recommends "hollow ground" skates, because the effective pressure increases with the thinness of the edge.

Not Exactly Growing.

"Is your town growing?" asked the Pittsburg man of a fellow traveler on the cars.

"Well, no; I can't say it's growing," was the reply, "not growing to speak of, but it is improving in its tastes right along."

"You mean the people are assuming a higher standard?"

"I do sir. Yes, sir. We now get bananas every day from Cincinnati, and five out of six groceries keep shredded codfish and Limburger cheese. We don't look for any building boom or influx of strangers, but we'll hold our own and gradually work up to electric door bells and oysters on the half shell."—Philadelphia Press.

Irresistible Attraction.

"What are you stopping for, John? If we don't hurry we'll miss our train!"

"You can go on if you want to, Maria. I'm going to see how they get that balky horse started."—Chicago Tribune.

Christianity wants nothing so much in the world as sunny people. The old are hungrier for love than bread, and the oil of joy is very cheap, and if you can help the poor on with a garment of praise it will be better for them than blankets.—Henry Drummond.

Lincoln's Way.

At a time when Mr. Lincoln was under great mental stress during the civil war Mr. George H. Yeaman, then congressman from Kentucky, called upon him and thus describes the occasion in the New York Tribune:

"The president was alone at his desk, hard at work, and the congressman promptly offered to retire and call again.

"No," said Lincoln, 'sit down. I'll be through shortly.'

"Presently his little son partly opened the door. 'Papa,' said he, 'mamma says the company will soon assemble.'

"The congressman rose. 'Please be seated; we'll get to it directly,' said Lincoln.

"He continued his work. His face was very grave; it showed anxiety and melancholy indescribable. Disasters had come in the field, and it was not all harmony among his supporters. Very soon his barber came in, and again the congressman offered to retire.

"No," said Lincoln; 'just excuse me one moment.' He got up, threw off his coat, seated himself in one chair and stretched his long legs across another. The barber lathered his face and commenced stropping a razor. When that was over the president turned his head and gently asked, 'Now, what can I do?'

"The congressman told his mission. It was considered kindly, decided correctly and he went his way. We need not compare this with the court etiquette of emperors and kings, nor ask if Washington or Adams, or even Jefferson, would have so received a visitor on business; but it was what Abraham Lincoln did."

Some One Had to Stay.

The story below is from El Diario, an Argentine newspaper, published in Spanish. The anecdote is told of a prison in a provincial town in Argentina:

"An employee, whose duty it was to inspect them, arrived late at night at one of them and asked a ragged 'gaucho' who opened the door where the chief of police was.

"The chief, sir," he answered, 'lives at his farm, three or four leagues off. He seldom comes.'

"And the second of police?"

"The second has not come for some time, sir. The poor man has his wife ill."

"And the officer of the guard?"

"He has been invited to a dance."

"And the gendarmes?"

"The gendarmes, sir, finish their duty at 6 p. m. and don't return till next day."

"But this is a scandal! There is nobody here to explain things. And you? Who are you?"

"I am the prisoner, sir."

The whole thing reads like an incident from a comic opera. But it is a perfectly literal translation from the paper mentioned.

He Answered It.

The following story is told of how Thomas B. Reed was admitted to the bar in California: Mr. Reed was being examined as to his qualifications for the law along with several companions. The question "Was the legal tender act, in your opinion, constitutional?" was asked of the candidate sitting next to Mr. Reed. The young man hesitated, as well he might, for even the justices of the supreme court had spent many weary days hearing arguments on that particular question, and after once deciding that it was unconstitutional afterward reversed their decision. While the young man hesitated, the judge turned to Mr. Reed, saying, "What do you think, Mr. Reed—was the act constitutional?"

"It was," replied Mr. Reed, without a moment's hesitation.

"Very good," was the reply; "you are admitted to the bar. Any man who can answer offhand a question that is still puzzling the supreme court of the United States is certainly pre-eminently qualified to practice law before this court."—Washington Letter.

The Missed Dish.

A schoolmaster in a village school had been in the habit of purchasing pork from parents of his pupils on the occasion of the killing of the pig. One day a small boy marched up to the master's desk and inquired "if he would like a bit of pork, as they were going to kill their pig."

The schoolmaster replied in the affirmative. Several days having elapsed, the master called the boy up to him and inquired the reason he had not brought it.

"Oh, please, sir," the boy replied, "the pig got better."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Odd Companions.

The Kennebec Journal tells of a man who has a fox and a hound that are boon companions. When both animals were in the pup stage, they were placed together and have now enjoyed a year of each other's society in peace and harmony. They sleep together and play with each other much after the manner of two frolicsome pups. The fox has perfect freedom of action, coming and going at will, but he always returns at night to share the dog's bed.

WEATHER FORECAST—Kentucky,

THE Presidential election will occur
next year. This is the year for the Republicans to "get together" on their State and county tickets, so they can carry the State next year.—Public Ledger.

And for the same reason this is the year for the Democrats to "get together"
on "their State and county tickets, so they can carry the State next year."

EX-CAPTAIN OBERLIN M. CARTER, who was sentenced to dismissal from the army, to be imprisoned for five years at Ft. Leavenworth, and to pay a fine of $5,- 000, sent his check for $5,000 Saturday to United States District Attorney Burnett
in payment of his fine. As he got away with nearly $2,000,000 of the public money, it would be dead easy for him to pay many fines no larger than that assessed against him.

MAJOR H. B. McCLELLAND, who was one of the Brown challengers and who stayed at No. 21 the greater part of the day and until 9 o'clock at night, said that the statement in the Leader that colored men were refused and rejected
was not correct, that the registration
was, as far as he could see and judge, fair and free, and if it was as fair in other places it was a fair registration.
He said that the main trouble was that the Republicans had no organization and had done nothing to get out their vote,
there being fifty or sixty Republicans who did not come to register.—Lexington Herald.

The Herald is one of the ablest opponents Senator Goebel has in the present campaign. The above puts a quietus on the Republican cry of fraud.

MR. JOHN W. ALEXANDER.

Nothing But Words of Praise for Democracy's Popular Nominee for Representative.

Public Ledger: "Elsewhere in this impression of the Ledger will be found the announcement of Mr. John W. Alexander, Democratic candidate for Representative from Mason County in the next Legislature. He is no stranger to the people of the county, nor is he an untried experiment as an official. For several years he was a Deputy, and later was elected High Sheriff by the largest majority given to any candidate within the past twenty-five years. We have known him from childhood; and as boy and man, as citizen and official, have always known him as honorable and upright. If elected he will serve the people faithfully as Representative as he has served them in other capacities."

Sunday Morning Call: "In another column will be found the announcement of Mr. John W. Alexander as a candidate for Representative of Mason County
—subject to the action of his party. It is hardly worth while to give this gentleman's political bearings, for they are well defined and generally known.
Though his head is streaked with silver and gold—a bi-metallic, as it were—there is not a more thoroughbred Democrat in old Mason than our John. He is capable, popular and level-headed, three essential requisites which should accompany Mason's Representative, be he who he may. Mr. Alexander is not a stranger to office, having served as High Sheriff of this county, sat as a city father in the Council of our city, and other positions of trust and honor, all of which he filled with credit and entire satisfaction to his constituents. He is a successful business man, an ex-farmer and a man of the people; with these relations and experience he is well informed as to the needs and requirements of all the people as a whole, hence when it comes to enacting laws affecting their interests he will know how to look after and take care of them. The affairs of Mason at Frankfort will be well cared for if she confides her interests to the keeping of Mr. Alexander."

THINK ABOUT THIS.

Figures Showing the Result of Republican
Rule in Kentucky for Past Four Years.

[Paris Kentuckian-Citizen.]

Every citizen is interested, or shoud
be interested in the welfare and prosperity of the State. For nearly four years the Republican party has been in power, and the question for each voter to consider and decide is: Has that party
so administered the government and affairs of the State as to entitle it to a new lease of power?

Almost at the inception of the Republican administration of the State government, for the first time in the history of the State, the military was called out,
and practically martial law was established at the Capital, and soldiery surrounded the halls of legislation. It was an attempted show of power, but a pitiable display of weakness—and an ineffaceable disgrace to the Commonwealth.

The financial interests and conditions of the State are of paramount importance.
How have the Republicans managed the finances of the State?

The amount paid for the general expenditure fund, beginning with the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1892, to June 30th, 1895, was $8,469,885.87.

Under Republican rule, amount paid out for same fund, beginning with the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1896, to the fiscal year ending June 30, 1899, was $10,- 425,766.57; showing a difference in favor of Democratic control of the State in four years of $1,964,900.14, or nearly $500,000 per annum; a pretty heavy outlay for the luxury (?) of Republican rule.

The school fund has not been managed as well under Republican rule as under Democratic rule. During the four years, 1893, 1894, 1895, 1896, the amount distributed aggregated $7,880,568.14. During the four years 1897, 1898, 1899, 1900, the amount distributed aggregated $6,869,- 162.30; showing a difference in favor of the Democratic administration of $1,011,- 403.84, in four years. The per capita is fixed in advance. The distribution of the fund in 1896 was made by Republicans, but the per capita for that year was fixed in 1895 by the Democrats.

Under the Democratic administration
the per capita distributed during the four years averaged $2.75. Under the present Republican administration the per capita has averaged only $2.35.

The rate of taxation has been largely increased, and yet, according to the Auditor's statement for August, 1899, shows existing deficit to be $468,879.31.

Should not the tax-payers of the State examine such statements as these and ascertain for themselves whether it is longer safe to trust the Republican party
with the management of the financial affairs of the State?

The Democracy of Kentucky are men
more largely interested in the material progress and prosperity of the State than Republicans; Democrats have in the past, and will in the future, manage the State affairs with prudence and economy.
The burden of taxation falls mainly upon them, and they will see to it that the burden shall be lifted and made lighter
instead of heavier.

Voters should not permit abuse and side issues to obscure the great and vital issues between the two leading political parties. If the people want good government, State and National—and an economical and sane administration of public affairs, the only way to accomplish that result is by placing the Democracy in power.

REV. GEORGE H. MEANS

Corrects Some Recent Misstatements Made by Theodore Hallam, the Brownite.

FRANKFORT, KY., Oct. 6.—In a letter received to-day by Mrs. Emma Guy Cromwell, wife of Attorney William Cromwell, of this city, the Rev. George H. Means, of Winchester, formerly pastor of the Scott Street Methodist Church, of Covington, takes occasion to deny
some of the statements made by Theodore Hallam, of Covington, in some recent speeches for the Brown ticket. Mr.
Means was the minister of the church
when it was erected, and was the one who solicited a donation from Senator Goebel for a carpet for the church. His letter, to Mrs. Cromwell, describing the incident, is as follows:

Dear Friend: In answer to your question concerning Mr. Hallam's speech at Glasgow, I will say that that part of it which relates to the Scott Street Church, of Covington, and the carpet which Mr. Goebel proposed to furnish is strangely inaccurate. Mr. Hallam says that Mr.
Goebel approached the preacher and suggested to him, just after the new church was built, that if they would advertise the fact that he and his brother gave it and would support him politically, they would give the church a carpet. Now the facts are these: I approached Mr. Goebel, and Mr. Goebel never approached me at any time or for any purpose. Mr. Goebel said that he would see his brother, and gave me to understand that the carpet would be furnished.
Nothing was said about advertising the fact;
nothing was said about supporting him politically, and no conditions whatever were mentioned.

Mr. Hallam continues: "You all know that it wouldn't take 1,000 yards of carpet, and that there is only a narrow strip down the aisles."

This statement is of no importance, but like others made by him, is inaccurate. It took 900 yards to carpet that church, and it is carpeted.
Mr. Hallam further says: "Goebel has never given so much as a shred of carpet to the church." This is true, but Mr. Hallam failed to give his audience the reason for this, which is that a few of Mr. Sandford's friends, not more than five or six, opposed receiving it, and they talked so much that it finally came to Mr. Goebel's ears, and I went to see him and released
him from his promise to give it.

As to the statement that "the minister indignantly spurned Mr. Goebel's proposition," it is not true, because Mr. Goebel made no proposition of any kind. The question of politics was never mentioned at any time, nor was there any other question ever mentioned in connection with the transaction.

Of course you know I am neither a Democrat
nor a Republican, but a Prohibitionist, and I have no interest in the matter except to see justice and truth prevail. As you ask me the question, it is but right that I should answer
you. Mr. Goebel's course throughout was manly, straightforward and without the shadow of moral obliquity. Yours truly,

GEORGE H. MEANS.

REV. THOMAS N. ARNOLD

Pays a Tribute to the Democratic Nominee
For Governor.

FRANKFORT, KY., September 29.—Rev.
Thomas N. Arnold, of this city, one of the most widely known and best-beloved Christian ministers in this section of Kentucky, has written a letter to a friend in Montgomery County, in which he takes occasion to say something commendatory of Senator Goebel, the Democratic gubernatorial nominee. That part of his letter is as follows:

"Having formerly lived many years in Covington, I have known William Goebel
since his early boyhood, and have watched with interest his rise to his present commanding position. There must have been unusual ability and assurance of integrity in the young attorney when the late Senator John W. Stevenson admitted him to his office, and eventually committed to his trust, without bond, his handsome estate.

"As the partner of the Hon. John G.
Carlisle, Mr. Goebel represented the firm during Mr. Carlisle's long official life in Washington, and for many years he has been a leading and trusted attorney at the Covington bar. No man in that city or in the State bears a reputation freer from reproach in his private, professional and political life than William Goebel.
Unhappily, his present political eminence has made him a target for calumny.

"William Goebel is a splendid illustration of what a young man, unaided by fortune, unaided by influential friends or family prestige, can accomplish by good morals, energy and devotion to duty.

TO BE SUED.

A School Book Firm Charged With Price
Discrimination.

LANCASTER, KY., October 8.—County Superintendent of Schools Lusk has been instructed by State Superintendent
Davidson to institute suit against Ginn & Co., of Chicago, for $10,000 for alleged violation of the school book law.

Ginn & Co. executed bond to the State Board of Education that any book which they submit and is adopted will not be sold any higher in that county than in any State or county in the country.

Parties in this county went to the State of Indiana and purchased a copy of "Montgomery's History" for 65 cents, which is identically the same book as is sold here for $1, with the exception of the notation "published under contract for the State of Indiana" being printed on the book sold in that State.

Spain's Greatest Need.

Mr. R. P. Olivia, of Barcelona, Spain, spends his winters at Aiken, S. C. Weak nerves had caused severe pains in the back of his head. On using Electric Bitters, America's greatest blood and nerve remedy, all pain soon left him. He says this grand medicine is what his country needs. All America knows that it cures liver and kidney trouble, purifies the blood, tones up the stomach, strengthens the nerves, puts vim, vigor and new life into every muscle, nerve and organ of the body. If weak, tired or ailing you need it. Every bottle guaranteed; only 50 cents. Sold by J. J. Wood & Son, druggists.

ACRES OF LAND

on Lawrence Creek, Mason County, Ky. This land is a portion of the farm of the late George L. Forman, deceased, and is located about three and a half miles from Maysville. It is what is known as Walnut, Sugar Tree and Burr Oak land, and is very productive. It has one small dwelling house, two new barns, a Corn Crib and a Stable. The water supply never fails. One hundred and twenty-five acres (125) of the land is now in grass.

The sale will be on the following terms, to-wit:
One-fourth cash, one-fourth in one year, one-fourth in two years, and one-fourth in three years, the deferred payments bearing 6 per cent.
interest, payable annually and secured by lien on land. The land will have been seeded at time of sale and purchaser will take land as it stands at day of sale, with full possession March 1st, 1900.

Now is the time for any one desiring good productive Mason County farm on easy terms to purchase same at a fair price.

COUNTY COURT.

Wills of the Late Robert Downing and Patrick Quinn Probated—Other Business Transacted at Regular October Term.

The regular October term of the County Court was held Monday. The last will of the late Robert Downing was admitted to record. He bequeathed his entire estate to his daughter Sallie, the personalty to be hers absolutely as her separate estate, the realty to be hers "for and during her natural life as her separate estate, remainder to such children as she may have, in fee simple." The will directs that no portion of the estate shall ever be sold for reinvestment. He named his daughter as executrix without surety, and requests that no inventory, appraisement or settlement be required. The will was written in 1893.

The will of the late Patrick Quinn was also admitted to record. He bequeathed all his estate to his wife for and during her natural life, and at her death to his children, share and share alike. Before the estate is divided as above the daughters are to receive $200, to make them equal with the other children, who have been advanced that much. Michael Quinn and William Welsh qualified without surety. Appraisers, George Parry, Henry Piles and J. D. Rees.

L. M. Collis was exempted from taxation on $6,713, on erroneous assessment.

SAYS GOEBEL WILL WIN.

Blackburn Concedes Brown Only Eight Thousand Votes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Ex-Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, is in the city.

He says the anti-Goebel movement has expended its force, and predicts the election of Goebel by 20,000.

He says Brown will not get over 8000 votes and may transfer as many votes to the Republican candidate, but can not change the result.

Mrs. FLORENCE THOMAS is ill at her home in East Maysville.

A GENTLEMAN

Sojourning in Brooklyn some years ago desired on a Sabbath morning to hear the late Rev. Henry Ward Beecher preach. He asked a little urchin on the street to direct him to Mr. Beecher's church. The little fellow said: "Mister, do you see that crowd?" "I do," answered the gentleman. "Well, mister, follow it, and you'll get there."

IF YOU WANT THE BEST IN CLOTHING,

Furnishing Goods and Men's and Boys' SHOES, follow the crowd and you'll land in the right place. Were it not that we are awfully bashful we would tell you of the compliments showered upon us by the many who have looked over our stock. Our windows, to some extent give you an idea what we have. In passing our house, take a peep. You will see stuff that will interest you.

We are sometimes asked: "Do people read and believe your advertisements?" Well! If you would have looked in on us in the past ten days (since the weather turned cool) you would have concluded that our advertisements and our merchandise are credited, for notwithstanding we employ more salesmen than all the other clothing houses in Maysville combined, we were unable to wait on everybody. Mothers, we want you to see our

HON. JAMES H. MULLIGAN.

One of Kentucky's Honored Democrats Delivers an Able and Instructive Speech at Court House Monday.

Hon. James H. Mulligan, of Lexington, delivered a most able and instructive speech at the court house Monday afternoon. There was no vituperation or abuse in his entire discourse; it was clean, clear-cut and convincing, a call to duty to every Democrat.

He stated that he never was so intensely a Democrat as now; that the farmer, the laborer, the merchant and the mechanic were fast becoming the abject slaves of the trusts; that the trusts fixed the price which the producer got for his products and also fixed the price which the consumer had to pay. He stated that the protective tariff was the fountain source of trusts.

He denounced the war of conquest in the Philippines as contrary to the Declaration of Independence.

He paid glowing tributes to Senator Wm. Goebel, saying, among other things, that he had served six years with him in the Legislature and that Mr. Goebel was never accused of having broken his word or having gone back on a bill which he had espoused; that during his twelve years in the Senate no man could point to a single vote of his which was against the interest of the people and which was not against the combines.

JOHN F. FOGUE, of the H. E. Fogue Distillery Co., who was recently elected on the Executive Committee of the Kentucky Distillers' Association has resigned. His private business prevents him from attending to the duties of the place.

HECHINGER, the Oddfellows' Hall clothier, says that the little $2 bill he contributes monthly to the County Court day fund brings good results. His store-rooms on Monday reminded one very much of a circus day or Christmas eve day—a perfect jam from early morn until sundown.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in consumption. Four doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and I thank God I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at J. Jas. Wood's drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1. Guaranteed or price refunded.

ORANGEBURG.

Misses Lena and Etta Tolle are engaged in business in the Queen City.

Miss Anna Florence Orridge is attending school at Hayswood this year.

Little Aleck Beckett who has been quite sick with pneumonia is reported convalescent.

Several persons from this vicinity will attend the Christian Church convention at Cincinnati.

H. C. Corryell is not at home at present, being engaged in barn-building in the vicinity of Rugles camp grounds.

The public school at this place has been granted a week's vacation owing to the illness of the principal, Prof. Grimes, who is quite sick with measles.

Wood Bramel, of Mt. Gilead, made a business trip to Orangeburg one day last week. Mr. Bramel has purchased the land near his present home known as the "Wallingford farm" and will shortly remove there.

The sale of the property belonging to the estate of the late Marmaduke Tolle took place Thursday last. It was well attended and successful. L. M. Collis was the purchaser of the "home farm" of 130 acres, at $31 per acre.

The remains of Miss Rella Tolle were taken through here Saturday on the way to her last resting place in Mt. Olivet cemetery. Miss Tolle was at one time a resident of this place, and well-known and respected by everyone.

The terrible tragedy which closed the life of Mrs. Jas. Lashbrook has created much excitement and indignation in this neighborhood. Mrs. Lashbrook as Miss Mollie Lee was well known here in her girlhood days and leaves many friends and relatives to regret her untimely death.

THE LATE W. H. TARLETON.

A Tribute to Deceased From One Who Knew Him Well.

"Mark the perfect man and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

William Holman Tarleton, who died at his home near Washington, Ky., Thursday, Oct. 5th, was born near Mayslick in 1817. His brothers were Dr. R. H. Tarleton, of Martinsville, Ind., Dr. A. J. Tarleton, deceased, of Indianapolis, and John R. Tarleton of this county; his sisters, Mrs. Harriett Gill, of California, Mrs. Amelia Smarr, deceased, of Brooksville, Ky., and Mrs. Ann Denkin, deceased, of Martinsville, Ind. His last wife, who survives him, was Mrs. F. Fitzpatrick, of Brooksville. His first wife, and the mother of his children, was Nancy, daughter of Major John Baker, of Shannon neighborhood.

It was my privilege to know him from very early boyhood and I look back with unalloyed pleasure to the happy childhood days spent in the society of his charming family. I remember with what pleasure we fatherless children looked forward to our summer vacation when he always came to take us, welcome guests, to his home, and on through all the years we ever found him the true loving friend, father and Christian.

His remains were interred at Shannon with those of dear ones gone before, after religious services by Rev. F. W. Harrop, assisted by Revs. Calvert and Darlington. A large number of relatives and friends were present to attest their affection and regard.

What a splendid type of tireless activity is the sun as the psalmist describes it issuing like "a bridegroom from his chamber and rejoicing like a strong man to run a race." Every man ought to rise in the morning refreshed by slumber and renewed by rest, eager for the struggle of the day. But how rarely this is so. Most people rise still unrefreshed, and dreading the strain of the day's labors. The cause of this is deficient vitality and behind this lies a deficient supply of pure, rich blood, and an inadequate nourishment of the body. There is nothing that will give a man strength and energy, as will Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It does this by increasing the quantity and quality of the blood enfeebled organs, and gives that sense of strength and power which makes the struggle of life a joy. The "good feeling" which follows the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" is not due to stimulation, as it contains no alcohol, whisky or other intoxicant. It does not brace up the body, but builds it up into a condition of sound health.

PITHY POLITICAL POINTS.

It looks like the President had a string to the Carter case when he signed the papers affirming the court's finding.

Senator Goebel deals in facts and figures, days and dates, and names and places, like the methodical and painstaking and laborious man that he is, and like the faithful public servant and defender of the people that he has been and shall continue to be.

It always has been considered unwise and unsafe for those who dwell in glass houses to engage in stone throwing. How reckless then is it for a man who has been so unfortunate as to have had a brother confined in the penitentiary to abuse and vilify somebody else's brothers.

If the destroyer of the Spanish ships at Santiago were to have been paid for the work in dollars and cents, the same as for any other work, who would have received the money, we should like to be informed—Schley, the destroyer thereof, or Sampson, who did not hit a lick?

Between Goebel and Taylor.

[Bardstown Record.]

The result of the campaign so far shows unmistakably that the contest for Governor is between Mr. Goebel and Mr. Taylor. One or the other of these men will be the next Chief Magistrate of the Commonwealth. The people must take their choice between these two, and it is a waste of time and votes to consider the candidacy of any other man. Ex-Gov. Brown himself has not the slightest hope of being elected, and his candidacy is confessedly in the interest of the Republican ticket.

A Man of Destiny.

[Madisonville Hustler.]

There can be no question that Mr. Goebel has made a remarkable canvass. The crowds that have attended his speakings and the enthusiasm manifested by those supporting him have never been equalled in a contest for a State office in Kentucky. He is a man of destiny, and bids fair to be a potent factor in the affairs not only of the State, but of the nation.

Goebel Will Win.

[Mt. Sterling Advocate.]

Goebel will win. He has already won. The people of Kentucky are for Democracy. Every calumniator has done his best to stir up something on Goebel, but the more they search the brighter he appears. No dirt there. He will make an able, a dignified, a bold, aggressive Governor, and those attempting his defeat will share in a wise administration.

Brown's Purpose.

[Nicholasville Journal.]

Ex-Gov. Brown in his speech at Mayeville Monday declared he was for any kind of a ticket to defeat Goebel. That is just exactly what the old gentleman is endeavoring to do, and any voter who has ever been a Democrat should not recognize him at the ballot box, as it means just so much toward electing Taylor.

Tobacco Sales.

Mr. Joseph Burke, of Johnson Junction, purchased of Mr. John Kuble, of Jersey Ridge, a crop of tobacco at eight cents. Mr. Thomas Kuble, of Clark's Station, sold to the same party at nine cents. Wm. Kuble, who lives on the Lee place, also sold his crop to the same party for nine cents.

Among the signers to the petition calling upon President McKinley to offer the friendly offices of the United States in mediation between Great Britain and the Transvaal is the Hon. William E. Goebel, of Kentucky.

LOUISVILLE TOBACCO MARKET.

Decided Falling Off in the Offerings Last Week—Bidding Very Active and Strong.

[Furnished by Glover & Durrett, Louisville Tobacco Warehouse.]

Sales on our market for the week just closed amount to 1,811 hds. with receipts for the same period 664 hds. Sales on our market since January 1st, amount to 128,232 hds. Sales of the crop of 1898 on our market to date amount to 126,364 hds.

The offerings last week showed a decided falling off when compared with the past three or four weeks. The market has been very active and strong, some grades of tobacco probably selling higher than they have at any time during the year. The heavy bodied red fillers, when in dry, sweet order, that sell between $9.50 and $12.50, were exceedingly strong. These same grades in the thin, brightest tobaccos seem to us less active. The real good fine sorts, that sell from $16 to $20, met with less competition than they did three weeks ago. One of the houses belonging to this company (Brown house) one day offered a line of eighty-two hds. of sweet leaf and lugs, with a few trashes mixed in, that averaged $11.46, the highest price being $19.75. Common sorts, either red bright, selling below $8, were very high.

The following quotations fairly represent our market for burley tobacco 1898 crop:
